

DAILY RECORD

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1873.

A SCENE occurred in a Galveston police court the other day which should impress the youth of the country with the importance of learning a trade. A young German, well educated and refined in manner, was arraigned for a petty theft. He said that he was of honorable birth, had come to the United States with several thousand dollars and had not been successful in his business, having in consequence obtained work in the kitchen of a Galveston hotel, and performed $7. The young man begged the Recorder to send him to the penitentiary to learn a trade, and added that if not sentenced for a long term, he would commit some other and more serious crime. Seeing that the youth was in earnest, the Court sentenced him to two years in the Huntsville penitentiary. If this young German had been taught a useful trade at home, as most of his countrymen are, he would have been saved the shame of learning one in the penitentiary.

THE OLDEST REPUBLIC IN THE WORLD.—The Queen of Sheba of the Middle Ages, in reality, the oldest of all existing governments of Europe, and with a population of but 8,000, sits upon her rock, where, for fourteen centuries, she has watched the rise and fall of the mighty States around her. In all except her venerable antiquity she seems a caricature upon large nations; her army of twenty-seven men, her three estates, nobles, burghers and peasants; her two episcopal regents, elected for six months, and her Secretaries for Foreign and Domestic Affairs. But weak as she seems, she was a State when Britain was hunting field for Danish and Saxon pirates, and may still exert when Britain shall have become as Tyre and Carthage.—[Harper's Magazine.]

ALL hail, then, to the Anti-Monopoly Potato-Bags! A name conferred in derision often becomes the watchword of revolution. The pap-smokers have given the cue, in a sneer at oppressed industry. It is a jest at the workshop and farm. For one, we are disposed to accept it. It expresses vigor of purpose, power to accomplish, and will to work great results. Rings, regencies, and cliques had better be hunting for cover. The "Potato-Bags" are on the march.—[St. Paul Pioneer.]

TWENTY-FIVE years ago a gentleman went to Janesville with no fortune but a young wife and a pair of strong hands which feared no labor. The other day he left, old and bowed down, and took with him all his earthly possessions in the patched fragments of a grain bag. While he was there, though, he drank whisky enough to pay for a corner block. [Good man!]
